

Welcome to Brazeau County

Bio-Energy

Industry is in Our Nature

The wide range of industries operating in Brazeau County – oil & gas, agriculture, forestry, bio energy and tourism – bring more opportunities for employment and business than ever before, making Brazeau County one of the most desirable places to live and work in Canada. When you add economic vitality to natural beauty and a healthy community, you get a place that thousands of people want to call home. And every year more people are calling Brazeau County home, settling in our region with big hopes for the future and for their families.

Bio-Energy

Sustainable Energy. Sustainable Investment.

With a host of strong and ever-expanding industries that rely on Brazeau County's abundant natural resources to provide the lifeblood of their business, innovative methods to maximize the use of those materials have arrived in the Town of Drayton Valley.

Converting excess wood and other bio-waste into energy and a wide range of industrial and commercial products introduced an entire new level of operations for businesses of all sizes in the town's newly dubbed Bio-Mile. Drayton Valley's Bio-Mile is a stretch of industrial land where a host of bio-energy companies have made a home, supporting the growth of this new industry in Alberta, and attracting investment from around the globe. Green technology is on the cutting edge of the world's energy industry, and Drayton Valley sits perfectly situated to lead it.

Alberta Has The Energy

As Alberta's oil and gas mega-centre continues to grow. We have the opportunity to also grow our alternative energy industry, making bio-energy part of the Alberta energy package. Our region has the infrastructure, the labour force and the drive to make the oil and gas sector boom. Along with developing Bio-industry.
